Video Store Parking Exception Heats Up City Council Meeting

by Diane Oberg

The greatest heat and debate at the February 22 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council concerned an issue over which the city has no actual power. Centre Video, located in the rear of the Domino's Pizza building at Roosevelt Center, is seeking a Departure from Parking and Loading Standards (DPLS) from the county Planning Board. In the end, council voted 4-1 with Councilmember Antoinette Bram opposed, to oppose the request.

In technical terms, the issue was relatively minor. Zoning regulations call for Centre Video to have four parking places for its patrons. It has none and is seeking a waiver of the full four spaces. City Solicitor Robert Manzi, Director of Planning Celia Wilson and the Advisory Planning Board (APB) agreed that four spaces in the Roosevelt Center area are not significant.

The APB recommended support of the waiver.

Beyond the technical issue, however, was the history of the operation. According to city Director of Planning Celia Wilson, the store opened last May without having obtained a use and occupancy permit despite having been alerted to the need for such a permit by the city. Mary DePriest, one of the store's owners, denied that the city had told them they needed a permit.

According to a chronology prepared by the city staff, the store was cited by the county in July for operating without a permit, but has been granted a grace period, since extended twice, to come into compliance with the zoning regulations.

Complicating matters is the fact that a second video store opened in Roosevelt Center at roughly the same time. The operators of this store presented a letter to council opposing the DPLS for Centre Video. They said that their operation had been held in limbo for eight months over code requirements and that to grant the requested waiver to a competitor who had opened without meeting the legal requirements constituted a double standard that was "damaging and absurd."

Midgett Parker, an attorney representing Centre Video, said that his clients did not have legal counsel when they opened the store. They thought they had complied with all regulations and were surprised when they were cited for the zoning violation.

Bram saw the issue of the second video store as irrelevant. She asked Hobbs whether his intent was to punish Centre Video so the other store can get even for what it had to go through. Later citing a letter circulated to council, she feared that the issue had become almost a personal one and asked that council base its position solely on the technical issues.

In moving that the city oppose the DPLS, council member Thomas White said he was focusing on technical issues. He noted concerns about the location of the store and its effect on traffic patterns in the center.

Annual Financial Report Puts City In the Black for Fiscal Year '92

by James Giese

In spite of the recession and shortfall of some revenues, the City of Greenbelt completed the last fiscal year, which ended on June 30, with a small surplus. This and a great deal of other information is contained in the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report prepared by the city's Department of Finance.

In a joint transmittal letter, City Manager Daniel G. Hobbs and Deputy City Manager/City Treasurer Michael P. McLaughlin advised that Greenbelt's success in the last year "... centered around its ability to recognize opportunities to reduce expenditures without affecting the quality of its services." This was done even though the city "... continued to face economic challenges as the recession failed to subside and revenues from intergovernmental sources were either reduced or eliminated."

The report indicates that economic growth did continue at a slow pace during much of the year, but that there were "... signs that the recession's grip on the area was weakening." Positive signs noted were: the rental of the entire newly completed Capitol Office Park Building No. 6 to Digital Equipment Corporation for 20 years; a slight increase in home construction with 66 single family homes being built at Greenspring and 21 townhouses at Belle Pointe; the groundbreaking for the new federal courthouse to be completed in the spring of 1994; the reconstruction of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway interchange with Greenbelt Road; and the construction of a 73,000 square foot "super" Giant supermarket at Beltway Plaza.

City Initiatives

In order to reduce costs, city positions were combined or phased out and goods and services were aggressively sought from vendors offering the greatest value, according to the report. The city re-evaluated its insurance coverage and changed vendors to reduce expenditures by more than $100,000. Although revenues for capital construction funds were reduced, the loss was offset by lower than expected construction bids resulting from heavy competition among bidders hit by the recession.

Capital projects completed were the Aquatic and Fitness Center opened in September, 1991, the first phase of the development of Schrom Hills Park (despite loss of Program Open Space funding) and water quality improvements to Greenbelt Lake. The report takes note of the "partnership" with George Christacos, owner of the two original buildings at Roosevelt Center "... whereby the city guaranteed financing of improvements to the shopping center and the owner donated funds to upgrade a city-owned parking lot." The report claims that this "... innovative arrangement will save taxpayers over $400,000 in construction costs.

Future Developments

The report advises its readers, many of whom will be holders or prospective holders of city bonds, that the city will be acquiring Greenbelt Center Elementary School in September 1993 and converting it into a community center. To accomplish this, the city plans to issue three million dollars in general obligation bonds.

The city plans to expand code enforcement. (This was initiated after the report was completed). Both the inspection of rental units and the monitoring of sediment control procedures, functions formerly performed by the county are to be done by the city. The city intends to inspect rental units on an annual basis, rather than the county's practice of every other year. Concern for aging rental properties within the city and cutbacks by the county in the number of inspectors were cited as reasons for the city taking over housing inspection.

The report takes note that Greenbelt's neighbor, Goddard Space Flight Center will be growing into the future. Goddard is the coordinating center for three of the National Aeronautics Arts Center Production Has Music, Comedy, Stories . . .

by Sandy Smith

"An Evening with Friends" will be held on Saturday, March 6, 7:30 p.m. at Springhill Lake Fountain Lodge. The final program, announced by producer of the event Konrad Herling, ensures that the audience will be treated to a variety of talented performers, from singers to storytellers, comedians to musicians. This is the third annual variety show sponsored by the Greenbelt Arts Center, and although the show includes performers who have delighted audiences in past shows, there is an equal number of performers who will be new to the Greenbelt stage.

Al Herling, well-known Greenbelt pianist, will entertain with classical numbers as well as instant compositions. He'll bring his concertina to play as well. Jean Cook will bring the music of Broadway to Greenbelt. Comedienne Lori Moran tells stories and classic jokes. Another Greenbelt performer is Helen Oring, who will sing, accompanied by Lucille Lushine. Helen will sing several favorites, including a romantic duet with Tony Arduino, from "Fiddler on the Roof." Helen, an experienced performer, is a member of the Prince Georges Seasoned Players. Lucille Lushine will also play a selection on the piano. Greenbelt audiences will recognize another performer, Tom Renahan, who will use his sharp wit and comedic flair in his act. John Ward and Ann Leslie can be counted on to fiddle a few Scottish tunes.

Janiece Johns, an Eleanor

Roosevelt student, has a singing, dancing routine evoking the memory of classic performer Betty Boop. Cleveland Flowe, a classical and jazz pianist, will be performing for the first time at a Greenbelt show. Bill Stanley, a Columbia playwright and comedian, will deliver stories and poetic readings. On the electric guitar, Bilaal Yusuf, another Roosevelt student, will play "Always with You, Always with Me."

An important part of the show is a planned tribute to Greenbelt performer, the late Jan Turkiewicz, and long-time Greenbelt arts supporter, Tillie Wetter. Konrad Herling serves as the show's MC and Dennis Jellalian as the technical director.

Tickets are available at the door or in advance at the Co-op. Call the Arts Line at 441-8770 for information or reservations.

Serious Accident At Mandan Rd.

According to the Greenbelt Police, on February 23 at 6:17 a.m., officers responded to a report of a motor vehicle accident in the area of Greenbelt Road at Mandan Road. Preliminary investigation reveals that a 1992 Dodge Caravan was traveling eastbound in the far righthand lane of Greenbelt Road when it hit a patch of ice. The vehicle then veered left, traveling across all three eastbound lanes of Greenbelt Road, across the grassy median strip, and struck the driver's side of a 1987 Chevrolet Camaro traveling in the far left lane of westbound Greenbelt Road.

Upon striking the Camaro the van rolled over the vehicle, flipping end over end at least twice, according to witnesses. The van came to rest on its side, with the Camaro coming to rest on the north curbside of westbound Greenbelt Road.

The driver of the Dodge van and occupant were transported to Prince Georges Doctor's Hospital, where they were treated and released. The driver of the Camaro was transported to the Prince Georges General Hospital's Shock Trauma Unit. The occupants of both vehicles were wearing safety belts, and the Dodge Caravan was equipped with a driver's side airbag, which deployed upon impact.

More on Trails

I hope Mr. Giese won't mind if I use his column, "On Trails Being Natural," as an opportunity to address the debate of trail construction and maintenance in Greenbelt.

From my perspective, I feel that there is really an underlying struggle beneath the arguments over "natural" and "unnatural" pathways. Many citizens came together to save 184 acres of "wooded" property within Greenbelt. They came together for many reasons. One reason seemed to me to be the desire to express their concerns over the degraded condition of our global environment. As average citizens, what could they do to help reduce destruction, what could they do to stop rain forest deforestation, what could they do?

"It's just a few trees" philosophy has brought us to where we are today with a polluted environment. We are looking for a new language to speak with in environmental terms. We seek to build a body of knowledge that supports rational decision-making.

In Mr. Giese's column what I heard was the same approach to a problem, justifying an action because it was cost-effective in man hours and budgetary expenditures. I did not hear any definitions or analysis of the environmental costs in creating paved pathways.

Mr. Giese did paint a dramatic picture of exposed soil, dying roots, barren gorges and dramatic quagmires. It is just that picturesque. I did not learn anything about forest ecosystems or what are the number and types of migrating birds that breed each spring in Greenbelt's woods. How many trees make a forest? How much oxygen can 184 acres of woods produce? I got no sense of limits.

What is the goal of paved pathways? Access. Mr. Giese expressed the need to allow access to the property for all persons. In other forums may activities like bike riding, wheel-chair access, ballfields and the ability to drive maintenance trucks into the woods to maintain the paths have been expressed as "needs." It seems that if all of Greenbelt can not physically use the property, someone has lost something.

Just as I, along with the world's population, benefit by the existence of a healthy rain forest in South America that I cannot visit at my leisure, expense or convenience, I and all Greenbelters benefit from having an undisturbed woodland in Greenbelt.

Please do not turn our little piece of wilderness into another landscaped sports area with ballfields and "paved" pathways.

Trail Update

I am writing this letter in hopes of clearing up a matter that was the topic of a recent News Review editorial. The editorial urged council to pursue a paved path through GHI property at the end of the city's Northway Stream Valley Park pathway. This path currently becomes a dirt trail after passing through the tube tunnel under Hillside Road. The GHI Woodlands Committee held advertised meetings to get input from the public and homeowners several months ago. After this meeting a report was made to the GHI Board of Directors with recommendations for treatment of this property. The GHI Board has voted to implement these recommendations.

The plan calls for surfacing the path with woodchips bordered by limbs and branches obtained on site to slow erosion and provide less messy footing in wet weather. It should be mentioned that no one who attended these meetings expressed a desire for a hard surfaced path. At the meeting I asked if anyone was interested in a more durable surface such as stone dust. No one was interested.

A bridge is to be built of treated lumber at a point where the path crosses an eroded gully. This should simplify the walk through these woods since it will no longer be necessary to walk through the mud in the gully or hop between logs. There was general support for this although it was clear that those who attended the meeting wanted the least conspicuous structure possible.

The residents of the area complained about brush clearing that was done over the past year or so and stated that previously the brush had served as a screen between buildings which back to the woods. A planting plan was drawn up to address these concerns. Plants will be installed in areas needing screening that were identified by the residents.

Finally some suggestions were made to help stabilize the banks of the stream that drains runoff from buildings and parking lots in this area. It may be necessary to obtain permits for this work before it can begin.

I hope this clarifies the status of this area and would encourage residents to watch for the announcement in the News Review of volunteer work days to complete this project.

Bill Phelan, Chairman
GHI Woodlands Committee
(Note: The News Review editorial urged that walkways to the new elementary school be reasonably safe and have an all-weather surface.)

Letters to the Editor

Site Important

This letter is in regards to the excellent article by Betsy Likowski concerning the prehistoric campsite found along Indian Creek.

As an extension of this well presented news item, I wish to add that the site is one of about 15 sites that I have surface collected from and recorded with the state archeologist about 10 years ago. The artifacts collected with my field notes were donated to the state of Maryland—State archeologist. A review of my field notes shows an extract of a letter from the state archeologist as follows: "Bifurcated base points surface collected . . . indicates an Early Archaic Period covering the time span of 6,000 BC to 4,000 BC. These points considered with a bannerstone (one-half) indicates this site to be an archaic camp site." The bifurcated points, some say arrowheads, is named St. Albans since it was first discovered at St. Albans, West Virginia.

The real reason for writing this letter is to point out that the site testing (digging) by a contract archeologist was in compliance of a public law regarding archeological sites on federal land. The conclusions and recommendations contained in the final report to WAMATA and others contained some significant points, which I believe have not been considered.

I write this since my observations of the site while driving the beltway and crossing the railroad overpass shows some extensive engineer efforts. This would be a fine project for an investigative reporter to pursue in so far as compliance with a public law particularly a site of this importance concerning the ancient original natives.

Dennis Webb

Teens Praised

In a time when you hear so many negative things about teenagers in this area, I want to tell you about the music theater group at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. They recently performed "Bye Bye Birdie" under the direction of Mrs. Capauno and Mrs. Moore. I enjoyed the play so much I went back the next night to see it again.

But the reason I am writing is because I was asked to host a traditional all night sleep over party for the cast after their last performance. This party was for the entire music theater group, numbering over 100 students. At first, I was apprehensive. That many teenagers in my house all night! I wasn't sure. Would I have a house left? Would I make it through the night?

After finding out that no one else had offered, and they would not have anything after the last performance, I said yes. I wasn't sure I had made the right decision when Mr. and Mrs. Sparks and I stood in my kitchen handing out slices of 15 large pizzas at 1 a.m. in the morning. It was wall to wall teenagers, but I figured that after they ate, they would mellow out and probably sit around and talk. Not so!! They survived on pure adrenalin. They watched TV, danced, sang, talked, played games. It finally calmed down around 7:30 the next morning.

Yes, I survived, and so did the house. It was one of the nicest experiences I have had. They were well mannered, con-

Boys and Girls Club Has Big Basketball Turnout

The Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club has had a "tremendous" turnout for basketball this year according to Commissioner Randall Ramey. Twelve teams have been scheduled with almost 150 youngsters involved. Teams have been fielded for 11, 12, 13, 14, 16 and 17 year old boys and for 12 and 14 year old girls. Three intramural teams have been fielded as well.

Games are scheduled at the Youth Center, Greenbelt Middle School and the Springhill Lake Youth Center through March 6. Intramural playoffs will be held at the Youth Center and Middle School March 8, 13, 15, and 20. County playoffs are scheduled for March 13 and 14. Parents and other residents are urged to attend the games and support the teams.

cerned over making too much noise, cleaned up after themselves, and continually expressed how much they appreciated the party. Not only are these students talented, they are a true asset to the community and to Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

Did You Know . . . ? Financial Facts

The following is a compilation of miscellaneous data contained in the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report of the City of Greenbelt for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1992. Information of this kind is provided in the report to help investors in city bonds and bond rating houses gain a better understanding of the nature of the city and its economic viability.

—City expenses increased from $8.5 million to $10 million since 1983, a 284 percent increase. Tax revenues increased 313 percent over the same period. Property values increased 390 percent. The city tax rate increased from $1.03 to $1.33 per hundred dollars assessed value over the same period while the total tax rate paid to all governmental agencies dropped from $4.175 to $3.8978. The major reason for the decrease was the city's successful efforts to stop the county from billing city taxpayers for services provided by the city by initiating a tax differential in 1985.

—The five biggest taxpayers in the city are: Springhill Lake Associates, the owners of the Springhill Lake Apartments; Greenbelt Homes, Inc., the cooperative which owns most of the original government-built homes in Greenbelt and whose resident members own leases in perpetuity to their homes rather than fee simple title, which is in the cooperative's name; Springhill Lake Associates, again, as owners of the Capital Office Park; Beltway-Green Properties, owners of the Beltway Plaza; and the California State Retirement System which owns Maryland Trade Centers I and II.

—Considering its share of all debt for all governmental agencies, Greenbelt property owners and residents owe more than $49 million. Of this, over $24 million is debt being paid for by revenue producing operations, which more than likely obtain their money from property owners and residents in other ways. Most of the self-supporting debt is owned by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. Not included, is Greenbelt's share of the national debt.

—If the local debt were to be divided equally among the residents of Greenbelt, each one would owe over $24,000.

—Greenbelt is six square miles in area. It has 24.88 miles of paved streets, and .75 miles unpaved. It has 495 acres of parks, three recreation centers, four athletic field complexes, 10 tennis courts, and two public swimming pools. There are 808 street lights and 15 traffic-light-controlled intersections. The city has 172.5 authorized employees in full-time equivalents (i.e., two half-time employees equals one employee) and 7,481 registered voters.

—There are 714 single family detached homes; 2,846 town houses and 6,014 rental and condominium apartments for a total of 9,574 housing units. The city's population in 1992 is estimated to have been 20,267, over 800 less than in 1990.

FINANCIAL REPORT

and Space Administration's new and developing projects — the Hubble Space Telescope, the Earth Observing System (EOS) and the space station/platform. (Recent press reports indicate that the space station project may be in for severe budget reductions). Goddard is expanding its facility in order to provide for the needed space for the employees related to these projects, the report states, and presently has under construction a 192,000 square foot facility to house the EOS project.

Financial Information

Most of the report is filled with tables and schedules of financial information relating to the last fiscal year. The financial data has been certified as being "fairly stated" by the city auditors, Wooden and Benson, CPA.

Revenues for the city's principal operating fund, the General Fund, were slightly over $10 million, a 6.7 percent increase over the previous year, but $168,733 short of budget estimates (see table on facing page). Expenditures, also slightly over $10 million, were $233,426 less than the budget and only 3.6 percent greater than for the previous year. The budgetary surplus of $114,693 plus other accounting adjustments resulted in the city's surplus (technically called unreserved, undesignated fund balances) increasing by $178,607 to $711,469. (It has been the city's policy in the past to maintain a surplus of at least five and preferably 10 percent of budget. The current surplus is 6.6 percent of the fiscal year 1993 adopted budget).

The principal reasons for revenue growth were increased property tax revenues resulting from a three cent increase in the property tax rate and some increase in the total assessed valuations of property, and increased service charges resulting from revenues from the indoor pool. Except for Public Safety and Parks and Recreation, the expenditures for the city operations actually decreased slightly as compared to the previous year. The $440,000 increase in Park and Recreation expenses was due primarily to the cost of operating the new indoor pool facility and to a lesser extent to increased park maintenance cost resulting from the opening of Schrom Hills Park.

Swimming pool revenues for the year were $293,158. Swimming pool expenditures for both the indoor and outdoor pools were reported as $450,419 resulting in a pool operating deficit of $157,261. Revenues were 65 percent of expenses. Pool costs for the first year exceeded the adopted expectations by over $43,000. However, revenues also exceeded expectations by over $43,000, thereby holding the pool operating deficit to that originally projected by staff prior to the city having any operating cost or revenue history for the pool operation. Not included in the cost of pool operations is the cost of principal and interest on the bonds sold to finance the construction of the indoor pool.

Capital Project Funds

The city uses special fund accounts for a number of special purpose activities. Each fund has its own revenues, expenditures, assets and liabilities. Some of these funds are required to be maintained by laws and agreements, others in order to better keep track of some special purpose financial activities.

The most significant funds are the Capital Project Funds. Three of these funds are used to account for the expenditure of the proceeds of authorized bond issues. The fourth provides an accounting of the money voluntarily set aside each year by the city council for use on a variety of construction projects set forth in its capital improvement program.

The Capital Improvement Fund II accounts for the expenditure of the six million dollar bond issue authorized in 1985. Last year's expenditures of $921,570 overspent the funds available by $288,770. This excess was temporarily made up by using other city funds. Funds were used primarily for completion of the indoor pool, the last major project to be funded by this bond issue.

The Capital Improvement Fund III accounts for the $1,000,000 bond issue for developing Schrom Hills Park. The city spent $822,509 last year on the park, leaving only $49,039 in the fund. Only $12,294 was spent in the Capital Improvements Fund IV, which accounts for expenditures to renovate Center School. The bonds authorized have not been sold, and in the meantime this fund has "borrowed" from other city funds. Expenditures were for project planning.

The Capital Projects Fund spent $895,953 on a variety of projects. It has a fund balance of $881,317, of which half has come from the issuance of a tax anticipation note of $441,000 to finance the cost of center parking improvements to be undertaken shortly and which are to be paid for by Christacos.

Green Ridge House

Green Ridge House, the city owned apartment building for the elderly had operating income of $871,684 and operating expenses of $615,710. After payment of mortgage interest the project wound up with excess earnings of $85,489. This retained income is set aside for future building repairs. The project still owes $2,994,135 on its original $3,343,000 mortgage. The principal revenue source for the project is supplemental rents paid by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Residents pay rent on the basis of their incomes and not on the rental rates charged by the project and approved by HUD.

Excellence in Reporting

The Government Finance Officers Association has awarded Certificates of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting to the city in each of the past nine years for its annual reports. Hobbs and McLaughlin are confident that this report will be similarly recognized.

Education Program Hosted by PGCC/City

Greenbelt City Hall will host the second in a series of Take Education to the Community (T.E.C.) programs originated by Prince Georges Community College. The program is scheduled for 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, March 9. There is no charge.

Plans call for a brief opening program giving a 15 minute overview of the College. However, anyone wishing to attend may come and leave as they wish.

Recruitment personnel will be on hand to answer questions regarding admissions, registration, placement testing, financial aid, academic counseling, career counseling, transferring of credits, all of the many questions parents and prospective students have about the services of the community college. Not only information but printed materials will be available on almost every aspect of the college at no cost to those attending.

Anyone desiring more information can contact the Recruitment Office of Prince Georges Community College, 301-322-0864 during business hours.

Greenbelt CARES

Recently Wendy Wexler began her eight-week-long Teen Discussion Group at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. The groups are held in the Guidance Office.

The Wednesday night family clinic welcomes two new family counselors, both currently attending the University of Maryland and both in pursuit of doctoral degrees. Libby Nutt is enrolled in the counseling psychology program while Mary Ann Greely is studying the field of school psychology.

Teresa Smithson held the first session of a 12-week support group at Greenbelt Middle School on February 5. Ann Donahoe, a teacher at Greenbelt Middle is cofacilitating the group. Chris Folland-assistant guidance counselor, assisted in planning and start up.

Greenbelt CARES' tutoring program was mentioned in a recent issue of The Diamondback, the University of Maryland's newspaper. Titled "Sigma Nu Turns 75," the article talks about the fraternity brothers of Sigma Nu, a national fraternity, which has adopted Greenbelt CARES' tutoring program to do community service. The fraternity brothers tutor several students who are having difficulty in school.

Magazine Recycling

For households which receive lots of magazines and catalogs, Prince Georges Office of Recycling has great news! Greenbelters will be able to recycle those "slick pages" at a monthly drop-off center located at the facility of Holladay-Taylor Printing Corporation off Greenbelt Road. The two organizations are working together to improve recycling in the county.

People are asked to save magazines and catalogs—don't throw them away. On the second Saturday of each month bring them to the collection center at Holladay-Taylor Road from 8 a.m.-12 p.m. The next collection date will be March 13. Materials collected will be recycled into stationery and newspaper. Sorry, only magazines and catalogs are acceptable. No newspapers, phone books, or booklets like the TV Guide will be collected.

Both council members Edward Putens and Rodney Roberts cited traffic concerns in supporting White's motion Mayor Gil Weidenfeld also voted aye.

Attick Park Lease

Council unanimously approved a motion granting the operator of the lake park concession stand a waiver of the five percent franchise fee of $698 due for the 1992 season. At its January 25 regular meeting council had agreed to pay some of the cost of providing electricity to the stand and to temporarily reduce the franchise fee.

City Solicitor Robert Manzi, at council's request, developed several reasons for granting the waiver. These included the recreational and security benefits to the city of having a concession operation, the likelihood that granting the waiver would be less expensive than for the city to provide the services if the current concessionaire failed and the fact that the operator had to make unexpected repairs to the facility to meet health and building regulations.

Underground Cable

Council granted Cellular One permission, in exchange for a $3,293 fee, to use the city right-of-way to lay an underground cable between its offices in Capital Office Park and the Golden Triangle. The cable will follow Ivy Lane to Crescent Road, Crescent to Southway, Southway to Greenbelt Road and Greenbelt Road to Walker Drive.

City Director of Planning Celia Wilson said the company would dig trenches to place the cable in grassy areas. However, it would be tunneled under sidewalks, driveways and streets and placed outside the drip line of trees. There will be no digging up of roadways, she said.

Council member Antoinette Bram wanted the money placed in the city's emergency assistance fund, rather than in the general fund. However, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld ruled that such action could not be considered under the original agenda item. Bram could, he said, ask council to take the issue up as a new agenda item at the end of the meeting. However, she declined.

Board of Appeals

Council appointed Eunice Coxon, Steven Skolnik and William Stratton to the new city Board of Appeals. The board will consider appeals of citations for violation made under the city's code enforcement program.

Philharmonic Concert

The Prince Georges Philharmonic is presenting a concert with Brian Ganz, pianist as soloist. Ganz and the orchestra will be celebrating the Russian musical heritage. Glinka, Rachmaninoff and Tchaikovsky will be featured on the program.

The concert will be held on Saturday March 13 at 8 p.m. at Northwestern High School, 7000 Adelphi Road, Hyattsville. All Prince Georges County school students and faculty will be admitted free. Parents will be charged half price. For admission fee and other information call 864-7358.

State Withholding Policy Regarding Household Help

The current publicity surrounding hiring domestic help has prompted a wave of calls to state income tax offices from taxpayers asking about withholding taxes for those providing domestic services, according to Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein.

"Many callers are asking if they are required to withhold state income taxes from the paychecks of those who provide household services," Mr. Goldstein said.

Under Maryland law, domestic services are exempt from state income tax withholding requirements. Domestic services include services provided in a private home, or the local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority.

Other household employees are subject to withholding only if they are paid over $490 per month.

"As a convenience to the employee, however, employers may volunteer to withhold state income taxes from the wages of employees providing domestic services," Mr. Goldstein added.

For more details about state income tax withholding, taxpayers may contact the withholding section of the Maryland Income Tax Division, Annapolis, Maryland (410) 974-3739.

City Notes

Public Works crews placed traffic-count devices at Frankfort Drive and at Mandan Road. Snow removal crews were called out early on Sunday morning, February 21 to spread salt on icy areas and again late in the afternoon and into the night to plow snow accumulations and spread salt on icy roads.

Crews assisted the police department early February 22 by spreading salt and abrasives on ice caused by water from fire department hoses at the intersection of Greenbelt and Mandan Roads and assisting with traffic control markers after a serious multi-vehicle accident.

The automotive shop was able to take four old unserviceable automobiles out of service as a result of the improved maintenance program. These vehicles were approved for auction and the city received $1,372 from their sale.

Public Works crews stacked and dressed the woodchip pile at Northway Field and installed fencing in front of the topsoil berm.

The crews dismantled the gas pump shelter at the Public Works facility in preparation for removal of the underground fuel tank.

The Horticultural crew continued construction of a greenhouse to grow plants for city use. This should reduce the amount of plants that must be purchased by the city.

Graffiti was again painted over the city underpasses.

Vandalism to bulbs in the flower bed at Ryan Way was repaired.

The decorative concrete cigarette urn installed by the bench at the public telephone in Roosevelt Center was smashed by a vandal Tuesday night, January 19. A replacement urn kept in reserve for such a contingency was installed on Wednesday, January 20. The replacement urn was vandalized and smashed within hours of its installation. The broken urn has been removed and cannot be replaced because of lack of money to purchase and install more urns.

Greenbelt Girl Scouts Learn Babysitting

On a recent Saturday morning, Greenbelt CARES provided 30 sixth and seventh grade Girl Scouts with babysitting training. The three-hour course offered the girls a glimpse of what to expect and how to prepare for the unexpected when babysitting. The Girl Scouts—from five different troops—were taught by Judy Herring. Each participant will receive a certificate of completion and will be listed in the Greenbelt CARES Job Bank. The course for local Girl Scouts was arranged by Greenbelt Girl Scout leader Denise Troeschel.

GIRL SCOUTS DISCOVER GREENBELT ON HUNT

by Madeline Bell

On Saturday, February 6, Girl Scout Troops 567, 2427, 1161, 22779 and 3030 participated in Greenbelt Discovery Day.

We Girl Scouts ate lunch at Greenbelt Fire House with two special guests, Mayor Gil Weidenfeld and City Councilmember Rodney Roberts. We got to ask them some questions. We asked how you would describe Greenbelt. They said, "Friendly, caring, unique and green." We also wanted to know what can we do as future citizens of Greenbelt? Mayor Weidenfeld said, "Belonging as Girl Scouts or volunteering to help Greenbelt." Rodney Roberts said, "Some people were not in Greenbelt at first but now anybody can live here and we have to live together." We greatly appreciated what you said, Mayor Weidenfeld and Mr. Roberts.

Treasure Hunt

Later on we were divided into groups for a treasure hunt. Each group went to different places in Greenbelt and had to answer questions about that place. The group with the most right answers won. That was really fun, and we learned a lot.

Around 7 p.m., we went to the Aquatics Center. There we had a "splash from the past."

When we got back to the church, we set up our sleeping bags and changed into our pajamas. Some of us talked and some watched a movie. Then, at last, we went to sleep, which we needed.

Cold Weather Doesn't Deter D.C. Roadrunner Racers

by Larry Noel

How cold was it? You couldn't judge it from about 12 runners who ran in the D.C. Road Runners 10 and 20 mile races on December 26, 1992 wearing running shorts, T-shirts and no hats while the rest of the 135 finishers were bundled up, including the officials in the 30-35 degree temperature made even lower by the strong winds on Beaver Dam and Research Roads. About 10 runners dropped out by cutting the course short to get back to the hot drinks.

The closest finish in the 15-year history of this 10-mile race came when less than one second separated Scott Douglas 28, Bethesda, Md. who outkicked Jim Hage, 34, of nearby Lanham, winning in 57 minutes and 53 seconds. These two runners ran together the whole way at not a fast pace, averaging 5:45 a mile. Hage won this race in 1991 in 56:58 and has won the 20-mile here as well as the Washington's Birthday Marathon twice. This year he placed 16th in the Olympic Marathon Trials. Bob Obertl, 45, was 4th and the first master runner in 1:01:31.

Six Greenbelters finished the 10-mile, led for the second year by Kevin Wilkinson, 37, in 6th place in one hour and 3 minutes. Other Greenbelters were: Ken LaBel, 30, 49th in 1:24:45, John Salemme, 34, 56th 1:29:01, Joe Broderick, 54, 58th in 1:30:32, Mark McElreath, 48, 61st in 1:31:21 and Sid Conger, 63, 65th in 1:35:28. Two 72-year-old men finished in 2:08:02 and 2:17:09, respectively.

The first woman was Marny Gilluly, 43, Washington, D.C. in 1:08:58 who also set a new masters record for this race. (In 1991 3rd place woman finisher Judy Bugyi, 45, State College, Pa. set the previous masters record of 1:09:30). Gilluly won over Chris Stockdale, 48, Takoma Park, in 1:09:40.

Lending an international flavor to our race were two visitors from Munich, Germany, Charlotte Hale and Elvira Becker finished in 1:25:06 and 1:42:11, respectively. No Greenbelt women finished in either race.

20-Mile Race

In the featured 29th annual 20-mile race in Greenbelt (at one time this race was called The Turkey Trot 20-miler and held at Thanksgiving) there was not much of a contest as Ben Beach, 43, also of Bethesda won in just under 6 minute-a-mile pace in one hour 59 minutes and 28 seconds. Beach practically owns this race as he has won it five of the last six years, starting in Anne McHenry, 42, Silver Spring was the first master woman in 2:44:04.

Thirty-eight men and seven women finished the 20-mile. Conspicuous by his absence was veteran long distance runner Dick Good, 63, formerly of Greenbelt who has moved to a western Maryland town called—you won't guess it, Accident. That name ranks right up there with another Maryland town called Detour, not far from where this writer lives in Emmitsburg.

Complete results of both races will be posted at the Youth Center. We had help from several organizations: The Beltsville Agricultural Research Center (BARC), REACT Radio Communications Team with Greenbelter Myrna Burchick as Base Controller, the Greenbelt Police and the Recreation Department's warm facilities which were appreciated a great deal by all but the aforementioned 12 runners.

1984 and three second place finishes. His best time is 1:55:30 in 1984. Beach was in 4th place throughout the 10-mile and as the turnaround point on Braden Field he had a big lead which he stretched to over 4½ minutes to beat Chris Nugent, 27, Langley Park in 2:04:05.

Senoria Clarke, 28, Washington, D.C. led 6 other women finishers in 2:13:58 with Susan Kinnecome, 29, Bethesda finishing 20 minutes later in 2:35:42.

The Lion's Roar

by Lion Emory A. Harman
The Lions of Greenbelt have been active in a variety of activities and projects. In December, a pancake breakfast was held for the Handicapped Recreation Program, pounds of stamps were donated to the Disabled Veterans Program, and $120.00 to Easter Seals, toys collected in the Lion's Toy Drive were distributed and glasses were provided to a middle school student. A food basket was given to a new family.

In January, the Lion Club provided a wheelchair to an elderly woman, supplied two canes to two individuals in Greenbelt, secured a walker for an elderly woman, provided a pair of glasses for a middle school student, made a donation to St. Hugh's Church for community programs, collected medical supply items from the community for distribution. Most of the items were placed immediately.

In February, the club arranged for eye exams for two Greenbelt individuals, ran a Presidents Day fundraiser for community projects at the Beltway Plaza, provided a wheelchair to a woman in Greenbelt, and made donations to the Handicapped Recreation and Academic Achievement Programs.

The Greenbelt Lions are ready and waiting to help and aid the indigent and less fortunate in Greenbelt. Contact any member or write to Lion's Club, P.O. Box 677, U.S. Post Office, Greenbelt, Md. 20768.

Residents Reminded Of New Tax Rate

The Maryland State Comptroller's office reports that many taxpayers are not using the correct local income tax rates.

Nearly 2.5 per cent of the returns processed by February 1 contained an error in figuring the local income tax. For 1992, Prince Georges County increased its tax rate to 60 percent. The tax rate is based upon where the taxpayer lives, not where he or she works.

Concert Charms Audience

by Jan Kuhn
David and Ginger Hildebrand charmed their audience on a recent evening at Mishkan Torah Synagogue with their playing, singing and friendly banter. Dressed in period costume of colonial America, they performed on a variety of early instruments which, except for the 200-year-old violin, were reproductions of those played in the 17th and 18th century.

The concert was an educational program in itself as the Hildebrands described the history of their instruments and their research into the authentic tunes they performed. The violin was the most popular instrument of colonial America used by 80 percent of the early musicians. Other instruments included several types of guitars, flutes, the hammered dulcimer and the harpsicord, the latter being owned only by the wealthy few. The toe-tapping melodies and verses had an earthy quality that provided a window into the spirit and concerns of the times.

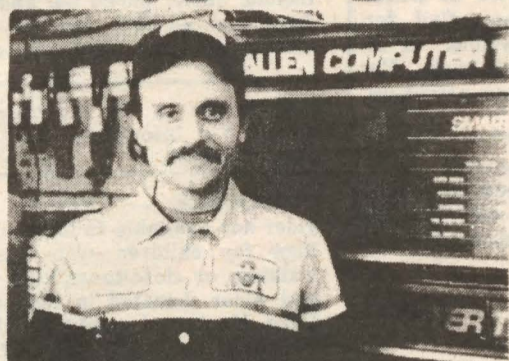

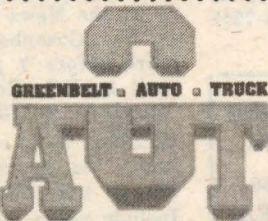

The couple has been performing together professionally since 1980. David received his Ph.D. in musicology from Catholic University in 1992. His doctoral thesis was on music in Annapolis before the revolution. Ginger has an M.M. in guitar performance from the Peabody Conservatory. The couple's music has been used on the sound tracks for movies, stage productions and various other recordings.

If the performance of the Hildebrands is a measure of the quality of artistic expression found in this area, one need not step outside of Greenbelt to experience the best that America has to offer.

Greenbelt Auto & Truck Repair, Greenbelt, Md..

Joe Aulisio:

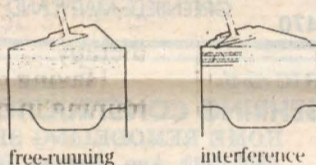

WHEN a timing belt breaks, the car stops.

The good news. You'll need a tow to a service station or repair shop, but your engine isn't damaged. Besides the inconvenience, you'll need a new belt installed.

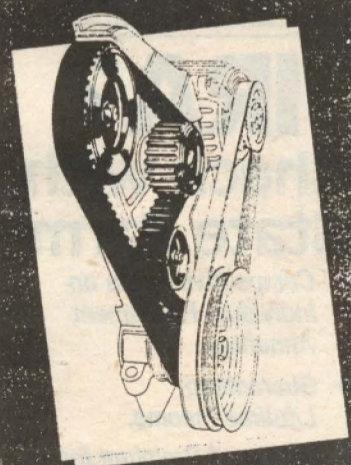

The bad news. If your car has an "interference engine," your engine may have suffered internal damage. In addition to the inconvenience, the cost of the tow and belt replacement, you may need a new engine!

What is an interference engine?

An engine is either "interference" or "free-running" depending on its design. If the timing belt breaks in an interference engine, an open valve may be struck by a moving piston. This can result in serious damage and expensive repairs.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello again.

From time to time people ask me questions in reference to their particular vehicle, and I render advice as I see fit. Case in point, a couple of months ago I was asked the question, "Does my vehicle need to have the engine valve timing belt replaced?" I casually asked what was the mileage. "76,000," was the reply. I responded "no question, IT NEEDS IT!!" The owner gave me every reason why she didn't want to undertake this repair. "OK," I said, and went about my work. Well approximately four months later, this very same vehicle was towed into the repair facility with a broken engine valve timing belt! This is the killer part: I estimated this job for this engine due to its interference type engine. This means that the pistons will collide with the exhaust valves if valve timing is interrupted, normally caused by valve timing belt failure. A normal preventive maintenance valve timing belt service goes out the door around $300 - $400, depending upon application and components installed; now it turned into a $900 - $1,200 project. This makes me sick because this is a preventable type of repair!!! And, my advice was not taken seriously.

Engine valve timing belts are a part of vehicle preventive maintenance service requirements and need to be addressed in accordance with the time and mileage. Not all engines are interference engines, and internal damage will not occur. We have a listing that determines which engines fall into this category.

TILL NEXT WEEK THINK PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE
